FUND STRATEGY

The Fund's approach to investing focuses on those companies that can be purchased at market prices below their fair value with a record of consistent, above average profit growth: strong balance sheets; sustainable competitive advantages; and capable management. The source of such growth is persistently above average profitability, which when combined with a sensible policy relating to the payout of such profits and intelligent reinvestment, results in the compounding of retained earnings and long term growth. The Fund's investment strategy is designed to grow purchasing power in excess of inflation and outperform the general market over time while mitigating losses during periods of economic adversity.

THE ADVISOR

Port Street Investments is a company dedicated to delivering institutional quality investment product to Main Street investment advisors and their clients. We utilize a proprietary research methodology focused on identifying investment managers who emphasize asset performance over asset gathering. We often find that it is the smaller, lesser known, investment managers that deliver good performance over a full market cycle. The problem for most investment advisory firms and their clients is that these investment managers are only accessible to the most informed, sophisticated, and largest investments. We aim to change that.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

The funds' investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses must be considered carefully before investing. The prospectus and summary prospectus contain this and other important information about the investment company, and it may be obtained by calling 1-855-369-6620 or visiting www.portstreetinv.com. Please read it carefully before you invest.

Mutual fund investing involves risk. Principal loss is possible. Investments in small-and mid-capitalization companies involve additional risks such as limited liquidity and greater volatility than large capitalization companies. Investments in foreign securities involve greater volatility; political, economic and currency risks; and differences in accounting methods. The Fund may have a relatively high concentration of assets in a single or smaller number of securities which can result in reduced diversification and greater volatility. The fund will bear its share of expenses and the underlying risks of investments in ETFs and other investment companies. The market price of the shares of an ETF will fluctuate based on changes in the net asset value as well as changes in the supply and demand of its shares in the secondary market. It is also possible that an active secondary market of an ETF's shares may not develop and market trading in the shares of the ETF may be halted under certain circumstances.

Fund holdings, sector allocations and other characteristics are subject to change at any time and are not recommendations to buy or sell any security. The General Market is represented by the S&P 500 Index. As of December 31, 2017, the Sharpe Ratio of the S&P 500 Index is 1.24. The S&P 500 Index is an index of 500 stocks chosen for market size, liquidity and industry grouping, among other factors. It is designed to be a leading indicator of U.S. equities and is meant to reflect the risk/return characteristics of the large cap universe. The Russell 1000 Growth Index measures the performance of the large-cap growth segment of the U.S. equity universe. You can not invest directly in an index. Beta: A statistic that measures the volatility of the fund, as compared to that of the overall market. The market's beta is set at 1.00; a beta higher than 1.00 is considered to be more volatile than the market, while a beta lower than 1.00 is considered to be less volatile. Sharpe ratio: A statistical measure that uses standard deviation and excess return to determine reward per unit of risk. A higher Sharpe ratio implies a better historical risk-adjusted performance. Active share: Active share is defined as the percentage of the portfolio that differs from its passive benchmark. For a long-only portfolio, the active share measure is between 0% and 100%. An active share measure of 0% indicates the portfolio is identical to its benchmark while a 100% active share measure indicates the portfolio has no overlap with its benchmark. (Source: William Blair) Only the benchmark-differentiating holdings can generate relative outperformance. (Source: MFS)
